DEVELOPING PUPILS INDEPENDENCE SKILLS

Self-management is a similar skill to self-responsibility but does not have the same moral undertones. Westwood (2003, p. 56) defines self-management as the ability of each pupil “to function independently in any given learning environment without the need for constant supervision, prompting or direction”.

How can we achieve this?

Class based strategies:

School based strategies.